

(by) goura fotadar/aka mara kudos, The Fictional VolunTier Project, on 021820, on 021920

Romantic Expression [Part Two.]

for The Fictional VolunTier Project

by Goura Fotadar

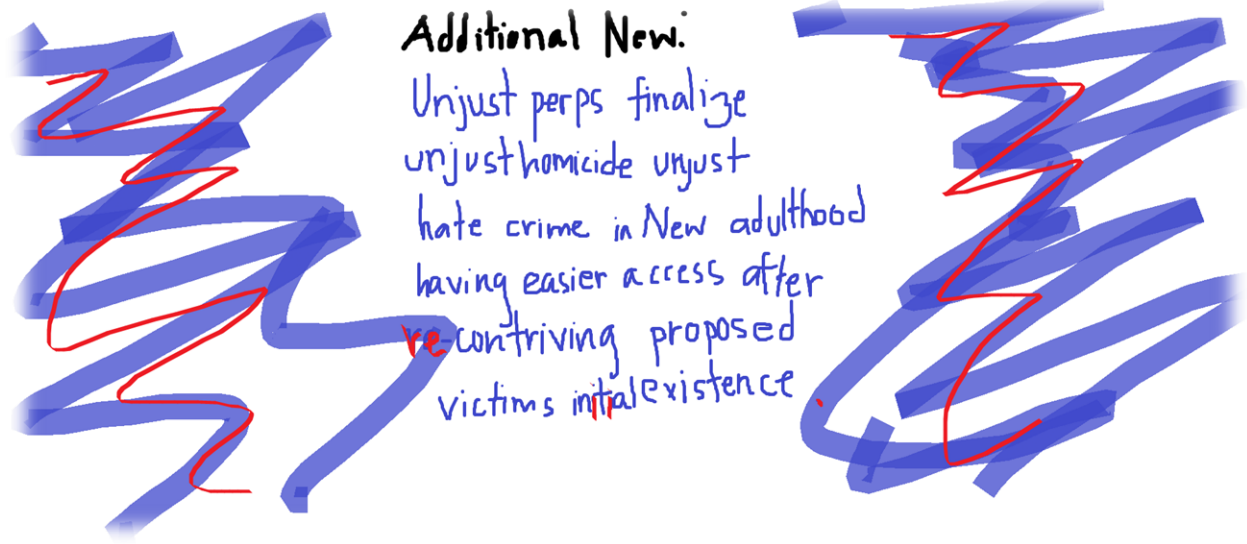

date typed up, on: 22820

tag[s]: cited: creative thought, criminology

theme: propo about the bec e gan and I'm exhausted r you, hey ta hey ta

So saving life re-conditioned in test from looking at this hate crime and perhaps this is review as application at this stage of comprehension is to discover what is, what are the initial existences of the proposed victims; then possibly to pin-point the circles or areas of highest visibility [to general] [to portions of relations such as for example in margins] and after a certain period to mask, to cover these areas of visibility at least to some extent and-or at certain periods. This is an application of covert operations to the investigation of unjust crimes and their correction in, to "society." If even the proposed victims are already deceased; access to their initial existence in such masking can still save life; how-so. Obvious reg. exercises have been to write a creative summary about what their initial existence/s were like and then to write/edit into at least a 2nd version cited: the task[s] of words; where certain features may be masked; this masked version may be released in some way to a publicly accessible stream; if even unnoticed [by, general public] or not.

Such as a train in form roughly ...

The prog.

eg: [sort-of almost fictional example]: They met after his first year of teaching. He only had five serious students; but when he was in such program he was the only serious student. She was on location for a community hearing; and oddly they kept in touch. They were married within such as three years. She moved into his house; from where she lived at a bedroom with shared wash at a community hall; she had to do 20 hours of secretarial work for the community hall to have the room. She stayed on with the community hall, when she moved in with him; and somebody who needed the room got it; for no extra work. The person already had a steady job, but it did not provide housing. It was sorta like an internal charity. In the mornings, they ate breakfast together; of already prepared meats and cheeses; and orange juice. In the afternoon; they met at program location; and ate lunch of ham and swiss sandwiches and apple juice. In the evening they were separated for a bit longer; when she returned home a bit sooner, and he came home at night ...

The at least 2nd vers.

The prog.

[fictional representation]

(by) goura fotadar/aka mara kudos, The Fictional VolunTier Project, on 021820, on 021920

cited: The Task[s] of words

They met before his first year of making cakes. He had regular order customers who he didn't know that personally. She came into the cake making study room one day, to order a special treat for herself; and that's how they met. Since that time they started dating with romantic interest. They got married within the 1st year of meeting. She moved in with him to the back of the cake making study room; leaving behind her old place. She started taking on work as the cake making study room's secretary. Soon, they found out that her old place had not been filled; and was now boarded up. They were unable to make meal planning work with their work schedules; so they went out to eat regularly at a local Italian dining hall; multiple times a-week.